BACK AT ATTACK AFTER A DEFEAT

El. PASO, Texas-Mexican rebels un der General Inez Salazar, 1500 in num ber, resumed the attack on Parral today, according to advices from rebel headquarters at Jiminez. The defeat of Campa, the rebel general at Parral, yesterday, was complete.

In Parral are 2000 federals, under command of Generals Villa, Soto, Urbina and Tellez. Federal losses are not given, but it is known that severe damage to buildings in Parral was done by Campa's artillery.

Today's renewed attack on Parral by Salazar is part of Orozco's plan to keep the federals so busy in that section that they will not be able to effect a junction and attack him in force.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. University of Michigan's great showing in her indoor meet with Cornell, when the Wolverines surprised the most optimistic and defeated the Ithicans 41 to 31 in spite of the absence of some good men, would seem to foreast great things for the team in this year's intercollegiate. In the eight events, three gymnasium records were broken, with fornell the contributor of two. Fitz of Cornell cleared the bar at 11 it. 7 ins. in the pole vault. John Paul Johns lowered the half mile from 1m. 57 1-5 s. to 1m, 57 2-58. and Sargent of Michigan high-jumped 6 Mt. 114 ins.

THE blouse that takes pretty, soft folds and lines is always a becoming one. This model is unusually graceful and attractive and it can be made adapted to either evening or daytime wear, as it is finished with or without the chemisette and under sleeves. In the illustration it is made of chiffon and the girdle is of satin embroidered with beads, while bead fringe edges the sleeves; but the model will be found a good one for all soft materials that drape effectively, voile and marquisette, messaline and the like qui'e as well as

The girdle can be finished at either the high or natural waist line, so that t suits all figures, and if a simpler douse is wanted it can be omitted altogether, and the fronts and backs rossed in surplice style.

If a half low neck is wanted the chemiette can be used and cut out on either the round or square outline.

In whatever way it is treated, whether made with high, low or half low neck the blouse is a charmingly attractive one, suiting almost all figures. The high, pointed girdle is exceedingly smart and altogether to be commended when it is found becoming; but when a longer waist line is needed it is wise to omit it and to finish the blouse with a straight girdle of any becoming width.

There is a fitted lining on which the various parts are arranged and the closing is made invisibly at the back.

JOSEPH BURNETT COMPANY,

The "cold business proposition" idea is gradually yielding to a sense of mutual interest between the buyer and seller.

The "take-it-or-leave-it-alone" policy is rapidly finding its way into the discard. An era of good feeling and cordiality is spreading in business circles and on the part of the public toward business. Certain interests are coming to see that the public has to be reckoned with and must be fairly considered and rightly treated.

Advertising is the mouthpiece for the seller, manufacturer, jobber or merchant. In the written word they gather their audience about them and tell them as face to face what they have, can do and will do. As their message rings true, so will the response be, if they are talking to the right audience.

The advertiser who tells the news and advantages of his establishment in the Monitor is always talking to the right audience. And he has the close attention of an audience which is cordial in its attitude toward all Monitor advertisers. These readers are glad to meet their more than average needs from what they see offered in their favorite paper.

President's Message on Economy

officers under the departments of the treasury, of the postoflice, of justice, of the interior and of commerce and labor. In my message submitted to the Congress on Jan. 17 I referred to the loss occasioned to the government because of the fact that in many cases two persons are paid for doing work that could easily be done by one. In the meantime I have caused an inquiry to be made as to the amount in money of this

Loss is $10,000,000

The -results of this inquiry are that the loss amounts to at least $10,-000,000 annually. , For example, it appears that a very substantial economy would result from putting experienced and trained officers in charge of the first and second class postoffices instead of selecting the postmasters in accordance with the present practise. As the annual operating expenses of the first and second class offices aggregate the enormous sum of more than $80,000,000, undoubtedly if the postmasters of these offices were embraced in the classified service, and required to devote all their time to the public service, the annual savings would eventually represent many millions of dollars.

The saving in salaries alone, not taking into account any saving due to increased efficiency of operation, would present time the salaries of postmasters of the first and second class amount to $6,076,900, while the salaries of assistant postmasters of the same classes amount to $2,820,000. If the position of postmaster were placed in the classified service and those officers were given salaries equal to 20 per cent more than the salaries now given to the assistant postmasters, the latter position being no onger required, there would be a saving in salaries to the government of $4,-512,900. In case of postmasters at of fices of the third class a large annual saving could be made.

An annual saving of nearly $62,000 could be made if the position of pension agent were placed in the classified service, since the work now done by a pension agent at a salary of $4000 and a chief clerk at a salary ranging between $1400 and $2250 could easily be done by one person in the permanent classified service at a salary varying from $2100 to $3000, Greater economy and efficiency would result from the abolition of the pension agencies and from the adoption of a plan in accordance with which pensions would be paid by the pension office

What is true in the matter of payment of pensions is also true in the service ciently and economically operated if it were provided by law that the office of receiver of district land offices be abolished and the duties transferred to the register, assisted by a bonded clerk, and the register placed in the classified service. It has several times been esti- Ends Revenue Cutters mated that more than $200,000 would be ved annually and the efficiency of the The report of the commission on the

By eliminating political appointees in the internal revenue and customs service and in the general land office, similar savings may be made. It is recommended that the laws be amended to take effect not later than July 1, 1913, placing postmasters and other officers here mentioned in the classified service.

Consolidation of the lighthouse and life-saving services is recommended. It is recommended that the revenue cutter service be abolished as a distinct organization and its equipment distributed among other services. It is recommended that all allowances for mileage in the travel expenditures of officers and employees be discontinued and that actual cost of transportation be paid, and that the President fix the per diem allowance of each class for board and lodging.

In thus recommending that the revenue cutter service as a separate establishment be abolished. I desire to make plain that such action does not carry with it the discontinuance of the rendering of any valuable and proper service now being rendered by that organization. On the contrary, I am persuaded that all such services will continue to be performed under the system recommended by me with equal or greater efficiency.

It should be noted that the adoption of the recommendation here made will result in bringing under one general administration all the work of the government having to do with the protection of life and property at sea. This will result not only in greatly increased efficiency, but in a large saving. The lighthouse establishment is compelled by the other navigable waters. THE THEATRICAL WORLD

MANCHESTER, Eng. - The Classical Society of Manchester University achieved a notable success in its performance of Aeschylus' "Choephoroe," or the Libation-Bearers in the Whitworth hall on March

It was the first occasion of the performance of this play in England, though it belongs to the famous trilogy of Aeschylus, as the second of the three companion plays, that deal with the fortimes of the house of Atreus. Though the play is regarded as a stiff one by plassical scholars, and the text is corrupt in places, yet the Manchester students had no difficulty in conveying to an audience, very few of whom knew Greek, not only the story and action, but the atmosphere and feeling of the old drama,

The play opens with the return of Orestes from exile to the tomb of his father, the father who had been slain by his wife Clytemnestra on his return from Troy. Like Hamlet, Orestes addresse; the spirit of his father in the un. dervorld, and like him too, is bound by supernatural injunctions to avenge his

As he stands at the tomb he sees a procession of maidens approaching, singing a dirge as they draw near. These give the name to the play. They have been sent by Clytemnestra to pour a drink offering at the tomb, an offering which is to appease the spirit of the king. But the offering proves to be none sent them. Cooking and Baking Without Dust

SOME DAY WHEN YOU ARE DOWN TOWN and have the time to spare, we should like the privilege of showing you through our bakery and delicatessen kitchen in connection with our grocery. We do dur own baking and cook our own delicatessen foods right in the department on the fifth floor, sixty-one feet above the street level, where there is natural cleanliness and pure air, entirely free from dust that always finds its way to foods displayed at lower levels. Our kitchens are constructed on up-to-date lines, the result of years of thought and study and constant improvement by scientific methods. The conditions are as you would want to have them.

We invite inspection at any time. There is no need of any advance notice of your coming. Conditions are always the same-perfect cleanliness at all times.

We should call your particular attention to the fact that all of our bakery goods and delicatessen foods are made under the supervision of the manager of our grocery. We have established a high standard of quality in these lines, and we require that everything shall be up to this standard. Goods are not carried over from one day to another. Everything is cooked or baked fresh daily. Having our kitchens on the premises makes it unnecessary for us to prepare more than we can sell each day, as we are always able to bring on a fresh supply as rapidly as goods are sold.

Next Monday we will inaugurate the most important Grocery sale in the history of Boston, both in the lowness of our prices and the number of articles to be specially priced. This sale will be announced in a half page advertisement in the Saturday evening Monitor, the largest grocery advertisement ever published in Boston. There will be about 200 specially priced items, of which a few samples, that indicate the values, are given herewith.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT STATES HIS POSITION ON BIG BUSINESS

LOUISVILLE. Ky .- Colonel Roosevelt delivered the principal address of his tour so far in this city Wednesday tives of interested parties to witness the night which was at the end of the first day of his week of campaigning through West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

In his recent speech at Philadelphia, Colonel Roosevelt said, "President Taft stated that he was a progressive, and this raises the question as to what a

The colonel gave his definition of a progressive on the basis, of which he indertook an analysis of the attitude of the administration toward a number of questions. He took up the railroad rate bill, enforcement of the pure food law, the conservation question and other sub jects which have engaged the administration. Four years ago, Colonel Roose velt said, Mr. Taft was supported by the progressives and opposed by "representatives of special privilege."

Speaking of the courts the colonel asserted that when the President supports "those courts which declare that the people have no power to do social justice he shows himself a reactionary.

In concluding his speech he said: "I stand for the adequate control, the Harvard law school. real control of all big business, and especially of all monopolistic big business LASELL PUPILS GIVE REHEARSAL ngainst all the great corporations actual- Miss Dorothy Payne. ly or potentially guilty of anti-social

In West Virginia Colonel Roosevelt Montgomery, St. Albans, Charleston and Huntington. Crossing the line into Kentucky his first stop was at Ashland, where his car was switched from the regular train to a special for the run into Louisville. The colonel left the train at this point and spoke for 15 minutes in a building made of pine boards and tar paper. On the way to Louisville he made short speeches at Olive Hill, Lexington, Frankfort and Shelby ville. His speeches were in the main upon good citizenship and the right of the people to rule. Large crowds greeted the former President.

MAYSVILLE, Ky .-- Colonel Roosevelt was greeted here today by a crowd of 600 persons. In a brief speech he repeated his "let the people rule" doctrine, saving:

"If the country is going to be good for any of us, it must be good for all of Osgood Holt, Dr. Charles A, Thomas, F us to live in.'

We summarize the important features of this issue as stated in a letter of John D. Ryan, Esq., President of the Company:

- (1) This issue constitutes the only bonded debt of the Company, and is secured by an absolute first mortgage on property valued at over $9,000,000.
- (2) This property includes practically all the land, all water rights, and all available power sites on both sides of the Missouri River for a distance of about eight miles.
- (3) The water rights cover a total fall of the river of over 400 feet, capable of developing about 130,000 horsepower, of which about 46,000 is in operation.
- (4) Cumulative Sinking Fund of 1% per annum on all bonds authenticated.
- (5) Earnings for 1911 were over 2½ times full annual interest charges on outstanding bonds. Current earnings are at the rate of over 3 times the interest charges. Stability of earnings is assured by long term contracts at profitable rates.
- (6) Operating expenses less than 20% of gross earnings.
- (7) Additional bonds can be issued under carefully guarded re-

Legal details of the issue approved by our counsel Messrs. Stetson, Jennings & Russell of New York; books of the Company audited by Messrs. Pogson, Peloubet & Company, Certified Public Accountants, New York and a favorable report on property and security for bonds made by Messrs. Stone & Webster, Engineers, copies of all of which may be seen at our office.

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Having sold the major portion of this issue at private sale, we offer the remainder at

96½ and interest, yielding about 5.25%

WINTER WHEAT CONDITIONS

CHICAGO-Crop destroyers begin to get busy in Southwest, and regular experts for private wire houses inspect rinter wheat where it grows. Those who know wheat plant best say prospects would improve greatly in 10 days with growing weather. They do not think winter destruction was extensive, but expect losses in soft wheat country of

Colliers Urged On

The syndicalism, from the practical point of view, which the government has to face in the present crisis, is the determination of the syndicalist leaders to advise the colliers to ignore parliamentary action and to proceed with the strike or not. Free Trade State and Protection

LOUISIANA is a solidly Democratic state. Since the compromise growing out of the Haves-Tilden contest of 1876, which gave it the first Democratic Governor it had had from the beginning of the period of reconstruction, it has been unwavering in its devotion to the Democratic party. There is never any question as to how it will go in a presidential contest, no matter who the opposing candidates may be or what policies they stand for. It went for Hancock in 1880, for Cleveland in 1884, 1888 and 1892, for Bryan in 1896 and 1900, for Parker in 1904, for Bryan again in 1908. There is not a question that it will be for the Democratic nominee in 1912. On almost every issue Louisiana is with the Democratic party. The tariff is no exception. It favors the Democratic idea of tariff revision, the Democratic idea of tariff for revenue only. It inclines strongly toward free trade. One reservation must be made here, however. It is utterly and absolutely opposed to the application of Democratic tariff ideas to its own industries, and especially to the sugar industry.

From the Louisiana standpoint there is the best of reason for this attitude. The removal of the tariff from sugar would let in the raw sugar of foreign nations at a price so low that the planters of Louisiana could not compete with it. Sugar means as much to Louisiana as wheat means to the Dakotas, as corn to Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Kansas, steel to Pennsylvania or the textile manufacture to Massachusetts. Its destruction would be a blow to the prosperity of the state. Strange to say, the free trade Democracy has menaced this industry for the last forty years, and, stranger still, protective Republicanism has repeatedly protected it. It is one of the anomalies of American politics that at the present time Louisiana should be appealing in all directions for assistance that will help to save it from its own party, and that, in the face of the hostility of that party to its chief industry, it exhibits not the slightest symptom of abandoning its allegiance to its traditional political associations. The case as it is presented here is not intended to raise a question as to whether Louisiana should or should not change its politics. It is offered simply as one more illustration of the fact that it is unsafe to attempt to make general application of even the most pleasantly sounding economic phrases. Louisiana is like not a few other states in the respect that it has a deeper affection for a theory than for a condition likely to grow out of it. "Free trade," "open ports," "a universal market" and all such sound well, as do also "fostered infant industry," "conservation of native energy," "protection of American labor," but there will be more substance to the sound when men, through honest, fraternal, concerted effort, shall have succeeded in raising the entire plane of human activity above the level of selfishness and sordidness and into the realm of equity and righteousness. Manifestly, if labor everywhere received its just dues the admission of sugar into the United States from foreign lands on a free trade basis would not ruin the industry in Louisiana. The tariff will be a local question until fair play for all, as well as freedom of trade for all, shall become universal.

to the Button Outlook

IN THE world of fashion at the present hour With Regard the drift is largely toward buttons. are coming back, or coming in, or coming out, as the case may be. But buttons are being used more for ornament than for actual use. It does not follow—or it will not follow when the fashion gains its height, as it is expected to do the coming summer-that there is a corresponding buttonhole for every button. Not at all; the preponderating majority of all the buttons that are to be used will not be used to button. They are intended to decorate.

The button, taken individually, is, of course, a small matter, but it would be nonsensical to take it individually in the present connection. Great factories in all parts of the world are employed at present in turning out buttons for ornamental purposes. The product will run up into the billions in quantity, millions in value. There has not been a button "rage" for half a century. The last was in the sixties. Then buttons in infinite varieties were worn, and many of them were as costly as jewels. They were made of crystal, ivory, pearl, bone, rubber, copper, silver, gold; they were made with silk, satin, velvet and lace coverings, often with settings of precious stones. A person was, in a measure, known and distinguished by buttons. One was frequently described by one's buttons. One's financial standing was often estimated on the basis of one's buttons. It looks very much as if we were going to have a repetition of all

The buttons just in, or just coming in, are a good deal after the order of those that went out from forty to fifty years ago. Crystal buttons are the most numerous and among the prettiest at present. They are said to be made of hand-cut Bohemian glass and are bell and saucer shaped. Colored crystal buttons may be had in amethyst, sapphire and topaz hues. Then there are ivory ball buttons, some plain, some elaborately carved, and amber buttons and china buttons. There are buttons of galaith horn, bone, enameled wood and combinations of tortoise shell and galaith. There are round, triangular, oval and square buttons. Monogram buttons are coming, and also picture buttons. Of very necessity the buttons, as the fashion gains, will grow larger. It is a fact well understood among those who study and cater to popular taste in styles that they go to one extreme or another before going out. On this theory the 1912 hat has about reached its limit, which is good news; but, on the same theory, the hobble skirt will soon give place to the crinoline, which is not good news. However this may be, the last button "rage" reached the saucer stage before vanishing; buttons may attain pie-plate dimensions this time, or they may develop rather along lines of beauty than of size, in which event they would open fresh opportunities for

THE long silence of the Wrights may portend either that they have or that they have not solved the problem of aerial balance, or it may mean simply that they do not care to talk.

EVIDENTLY the worst was yet to come. A New York man has invented an automatic cornet player.

THE flow and ebb and inevitable fluctuation of achievement incident to political experiment in a democracy is indicated in the spring election returns, so far as they have to do with socialism. The reverse in Milwaukee is not altogether surprising in view of the combination of forces against Mayor Scidel. All "isms," when given concrete form, reveal their limitations. Besides, it never was claimed that the original election of the Socialists was due to a majority of the electors having gone over to that doctrine. Rather it represented a reaction against misgovernment by Republicans and Democrats, and a turning to the first ·claimant seeking endowment with power. Now, it seems, having found socialism as an "ism" not without its partizan characteristics, there is to be "non-partizan" government. This is an ideal of city rule which is alluring, and workable so far as non-alignment on national issues is concerned. But urban politics, sooner or later, must create issues that are fundamental; and these in turn cannot but divide voters and create municipal parties and partizans. Providing that the urban conflict is over urban issues and that it results in decisive verdicts affecting city life, no harm is done. Too often "non-partizanship" is made synonymous with neutrality.

Whatever the ultimate fate of the Socialist party movement in American cities may be, the experiment of increased collective action has gone too far to be cut off until thoroughly tried out and judged by its ethical and financial results. Meliorists just now are in the saddle, and a majority of them are in revolt against individualism as a bulwark of selfish exploitation of the many by the few. Inevitably sooner or later, as collective authority becomes oppressive, there will be a reaction against it. The ideal community balances liberty and authority, self-interest and social service, private initiative and group-action.

Calm Survey of Equal Suffrage

It is as true of the equal suffrage cause as it has been of all genuine reformatory movements, and especially of those that have greatly stirred the sentimental and emotional sides of human nature, that the phases of its development receiving the most conspicuous publicity are those least representative of its character, least indicative of its real progress. If an adverse vote is recorded in an American Legislature, that fact overshadows, for the time being, the other fact that the Legislature in question was driven at last to take some cognizance of the cause—a circumstance of immeasurably greater consequence. On the surface, there is commotion only; beneath the surface, however, there is a deep, strong, irresistible movement forward, as may be seen by a calm and impartial survey of the world-wide situation.

No intelligent observer of events as they present themselves from day to day can fail to see that the woman suffrage movement has taken on an aspect of unquestionable seriousness. In the past its opponents employed ridicule as one of their principal weapons. The woman suffragist was regarded as a proper subject for satire and sarcasm, the cause in which she was enlisted was regarded as a legitimate butt. This is not the case today. In Great Britain, no matter though some recent episodes have seemingly checked the rapid progress of the movement, equal suffrage has apparently risen to the dignity of a parliamentary question. Here is a point gained that can hardly be lost through the indiscretions or folly of individuals. Properly viewed, the defeats recorded in the state legislatures of the American Union are proofs of tremendous advancement In the great majority of those bodies, suffrage could not have received a respectful hearing ten years ago. The magnitude of the gain made here can be best appreciated by those who have, in the very recent past, seen suffrage resolutions "tabled amid tunultuous laughter." There is no laughter now, tumultuous or quiet.

These are indisputable, tangible evidences of progress. They mean that the question involved is no longer to be regarded as one to be deferred for an indefinite time, one that only years of waiting will solve, one that may be shelved with a patronizing smile or disposed of with a joke or a sneer. Nothing can be plainer than that the question is before the civilized world, and that it is pressing upon all the nations for intelligent consideration and rational and just settlement.

Congestion of traffic is forcing widening of streets in the smaller cities of New England as well as in the largest urban centers. A common lack of anticipation of anything corresponding to present modes of locomotion, construction of business buildings and multiplication of homes in apartments and tenements made the founders of Boston and Worcester, Providence and Pawtucket, Portland and Lewiston quite unmindful of the necessity of laying out broad avenues along which people might move freely in days to come. "The Calf Path" poem by Sam Walter Foss is not without its pertinence when early New England roadplanning and town-making are weighed in the balance and found

Owing to conditions that now exist, towns and cities find that surface railways cannot make their way in and out of tortuous, narrow streets and through the heart of the retail business and amusement districts without creating risks for pedestrians and users of other kinds of vehicles, notably automobiles, that cannot be tolerated permanently. High office buildings congest population, and thrice a day at least help to overcrowd the sidewalks. Consequently, projects for broadening ancient highways of traffic in town and city centers appear. Worcester, Mass., has just about perfected one. Fitchburg is calling in experts to advise her how to act.

But in Massachusetts such a process of betterment is handicapped from the start by a law which limits the community in its assessment of benefits to property owners in the vicinity of the widened thoroughfare. A maximum of damage claims is assured; but collective community gain, and especially profit by owners of abutting land, are not sufficiently reckoned with nor made assessable in a way to reduce the net cost of any betterment of the kind. Other states are far more progressive and far-sighted, and their cities face no such handicaps in undertaking similar projects.

THE Mississippi river, it is said, has become a great lake south of Cairo, Ill. Unless there be a complete departure from the average, that water will be needed at many points north of Cairo next summer.

Socialism and City Elections

THE idea of making Baltimore the headquarters of a movement intended to turn the tide of European immigration toward southern ports originated in the conference of governors held in that city last December. It is recalled in this connection that one of the objects of the Southern Settlement and Development Organization, which has done and is doing excellent work for the entire section, is "to secure from the United States government proper port facilities for Baltimore and the south Atlantic and gulf ports for the handling of foreign immigration." The proposed Southern Immigration Bureau may be called an outgrowth of the general movement looking to the advancement of the South. It is proposed that it shall represent sixteen states. Its scope, as outlined in the bill of incorporation, is broad. Its purpose is to undertake the study of the resources of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia, with the view of finding the most suitable locations for the new arrivals. It will call the attention of Americans as well as Europeans, through a publicity system, to the immense areas of unimproved lands in the South, and in like manner employ all reasonable and legitimate efforts to induce capitalists and investors to become interested in southern opportunities. Beyond this, it will encourage the organization of immigration and agricultural bureaus in each of the states named and promote cooperation between development movements and the railroads.

Maryland is at present taking on responsibility for the whole project. Its Legislature has two bills under consideration the enactment of which will greatly accelerate the movement. One of these incorporates the organization: the other provides the state's share of the funds necessary to the establishment of the bureau. Once fairly upon its feet, there can hardly be a question with regard to the cooperation of all the other states in the group of sixteen. The object in view is patriotic as well as industrial; its attainment cannot fail to benefit, not the South only, but the entire nation.

A BUREAU OF MUNICIPAL RESEARCH bulletin relative to the public schools of Greater New York calls attention to the volume, quality and annual cost-$1,000,000-of the aid given by private agencies. Seventy-six of them offer direct, continuous and gratuitous cooperation and thirty-six cooperate indirectly through investigations, lectures and publicity, while four newspapers run school pages, columns or sections. Nurses, vacation

Schools and Their Allies schools, study and recreation rooms, athletic games, pecuniary aid, house-to-house visiting, dental clinics, school lithches and vocational guidance—these are only a few of the many forms of cooperation paid for out of the purses of citizens in addition to their annual taxes.

There is nothing peculiar to New York in this record. It is duplicated in kind, if not in degree, by all progressive communities. The point that the bureau of municipal research makes is that now this extra tax is unregulated and uncoordinated with the regular one; and that all these private, supplementary efforts to relieve a situation should be not only related to each other through some supervising agency, but directly, if loosely, affiliated with the board of education.

Of course such a plea makes its most direct appeal to any modern citizen or educator impressed with the waste that now exists in much charity and because communities fail to study their schools as efficient or inefficient administrative organs of definite social functions. When any city or town really settles down to see whether its private altruism and community idealism together produce desired results, then such questions as are raised by the bureau of municipal research in this bulletin must be answered. The least that a town or city can do is to insist that its board of education be intelligent, sympathetic and friendly toward private agencies seeking to guard and uplift child life.

Not the least of the possible allies of a wide-awake and progressive school administration in a community is the journalist. The testimony of most educators interviewed by the bureau in its many investigations is favorable both as to the civic spirit shown by newspapers in aiding in all educational campaigns and as to the efficiency of the service rendered when educator and editor work as allies. It is precisely in this field that the Monitor has endeavored to serve its wide constituency; and such is its program for the future.

THE visit of Secretary Knox to St. Thomas has again brought up the query, Are the Danish West Indies for sale? The Monitor, both in cable despatches and through European correspondence, recently discussed the subject whether the proposed development of the port by a Danish syndicate would expose the island of St. Thomas to a possible transfer to some other power. The authentic information obtained led to the belief that Denmark in the Caribbean no such possibility exists. The Danish government could not do anything that in any way would result in foreign acquisition.

But the question, which appears periodically, is still: Does the United States anticipate purchasing these islands from Denmark, which country, undoubtedly, finds no profit in their possession? The answer today may be no more conclusive than when on several former occasions negotiations under way failed to bring result. At one time the United States proposed such purchase; at another time the move came from the other side, with no more tangible result. The visit of Mr. Knox, however, which may well open another opportunity for negotiations, is enough to start a rumor, especially since the American secretary of state placed St. Thomas on his itinerary only at the last moment.

The Monroe doctrine is now defined as including not only North and South America but all those islands included in the western world. So long as the Danish colonies are in the market —and that they have been in the market there is no denying—so long will uncertainty attach to their status. Washington does not intimate that at present there is any desire of the government to acquire additional territory, but if Denmark wishes to sell it would certainly seem that the United States could no longer with good reason hesitate to buy. The Danish residents of the islands some years ago voted for such a transfer. As for the benefit to the United States of St. Thomas alone, there is no finer harbor in the Caribbean; it would prove an invaluable outpost for the Atlantic entrance to the Panama
